

Calling all Emergency Medicine Residency Programs!

Announcing The Inaugural

sonochakravayuh 2018

EMINDIA2018

Annual National Conference of Emergency Medicine Association
Academic College of Emergency Experts in India
21st and 22nd July 2018

We are inviting teams to compete in the Inaugural SonoChakravayuh®, which will be held at the EMINDIA2018 Annual National Conference at Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi on July 21st

The purpose of the competition is to allow EM residents to demonstrate their skills and knowledge of point-of-care ultrasound. All aspects of ultrasound competence will be assessed, including image acquisition, image interpretation, and incorporation into clinical practice. In this event residency programmes all over the country will compete among themselves based on the old Indian battle formation Chakravayuh. The competition will consist of 8 stations arranged in 3 rounds. Each round is arranged in a circular pattern with highest difficulty levels in the innermost circle. Each team will consist of three residents from the same residency program. All team members must be available and willing to compete during the entire session.

Please submit the following information to sonochakravayuh@gmail.com by July 1st 2018.
1) Name of your residency 2) All 3 team member names, email addresses and PGY year

SonoChakravayuh Committee: Dr Sanjeev Bhoi, Dr Tej Prakash Sinha, Dr Sagar Galwankar, Dr Manu Ayyan, Dr Vimal Krishnan.
